The New CCT Ecosystem

The telecom industry has been reshaped by digitalisation and digital transformation and a new telecoms ecosystem has emerged. Virtualisation and the advent of cloud-based technologies led to a paradigm shift in the way telecom services and networks could be deployed. Covid-19 dramatically fast-forwarded the process of automation and had a significant impact on the acceleration of the sector as a whole. The emergence of Generative AI looks as if it will fundamentally transform the world we live in and with that the way every industry and vertical operates and the implications for networks, infrastructure and connectivity will be enormous.

Increasing pressure is continually being placed on existing infrastructure as a result of this demand for cloud, the proliferation of new services, disruptive technologies, the ageing of existing infrastructure and the prospect of an AI future. The cloud, content and telecoms ecosystem needs to evolve to meet these new demands whilst trying to enable all parts of it to thrive.

What will the new commercial models look like and what will the impact be of disruption to existing ones? What will partnership and collaboration strategies between telcos and network infrastructure partners need to look like to enable this AI future? How will connectivity be reimagined and fully automated scalable networks be realised? Who will monetise assets in the future and what will be the impact on the future funding of digital infrastructure in a high interest environment? Can telcos unlock the value and monetise the network? What will be the changing data centre requirements beyond hyperscale and what power projects can be co-developed to overcome the power supply challenges? How can organisations be transformed from a workforce point of view and prepare for AI? These are just some of the many critical questions executive leaders need to debate and answer.

What is CCT 2024?

CCT 2024 – The Global Cloud, Content and Telecoms Summit has firmly established itself as the industry's leading global event to focus on the changing cloud, content and telecoms ecosystem. It enables discussion, dialogue and communication at an executive level on many of the industry challenges relating to global connectivity and infrastructure and the new services that need to be delivered. Bringing together the leading executives from cloud providers and hyperscalers, fixed and mobile telecom carriers and service providers, interconnect, platform and data centre players, content and OTT providers, private equity and investment banking and large enterprises and bandwidth intensive users from e.g. gaming, media, entertainment, manufacturing, automotive and financial services verticals, CCT 2024 provides a unique opportunity and platform to learn and discuss with peers, define priorities, advance agendas and shape the future industry.

Participation

Participation is by invitation-only ensuring a targeted and focused audience. The format is participative and interactive with expertly-facilitated boardroom-style discussions and brainstorming think tanks.

High-quality Content

- content and OTT providers are looking for new partnership opportunities to deliver services.
- how the industry can leverage new technologies such as blockchain, automation and AI is critical
- reimagining network infrastructure and network services to support the platforms and customer demands of the future lies at the core of the challenge ahead
- understanding how different enterprise verticals are undergoing digital transformation and what that means from an infrastructure, connectivity and service point of view is ever more important.
- carriers and service providers need to redefine their market positions, evaluate their business processes and systems, transform and rebuild their business models and create new revenue streams if they are to play a significant role within this new ecosystem and increase shareholder value
- web-scale and cloud providers have specific requirements based on scale, service delivery, time to market.
- the subsea and backbone network market is changing and new financing and infrastructure models emerging with new forms of investment.
- data centre requirements continue to grow with an increased focus on edge computing to meet an AI future; issues such as sustainability have come to the forefront..
- there is a shift towards on-demand, network-as-a-service and new platform-based models to respond to the needs of diverse industries.
- private equity has become integral to future investment in the industry but understanding who and what will be invested in is increasingly important.
- the evolution of 5G and the interplay between fixed, mobile, data centres and content will have a fundamental impact on the industry.
- scaling AI and realising its potential is an industry challenge and one that it is essential for the cloud, content and telecoms ecosystem to work together if this potential is to be realised.

Why is CCT 2024 Different?

- 1. Participative and interactive – the format lends itself to interactive discussions through smaller, carefully chosen and expertly facilitated sessions with each attendee participating. No press invited ensuring discussions are open. Attendance is at the same very high level as the speaker level enabling quality strategic discussion.
- 2. Executive-level attendees only – CEOs, CTOs, CCOs, COOs, Chief Infrastructure Officers and CMOs. Heads of Engineering, Network Acquisition, Infrastructure, Network Strategy are specifically invited. A targeted and focused audience.
- 3. Participation from across the wider ecosystem: Cloud Providers, Hyperscalers, Telecom Carriers, Service Providers, Content Providers and OTT/App players, CDN providers, Data Centre Players, Interconnect and Cross Connect Platform Providers, Enterprise and Digital- First Businesses.
- 4. Breadth of content – enables dialogue and communication between various players.
- 5. Unique opportunity and platform – learn and discuss with peers, define priorities, shape agendas and the future of the industry.
- 6. Content-rich – no sales presentations or sales-driven exhibitions.
